A bit of time for others.

My experience is probably similar to that of many moms or dads who, in recent years of crisis have lost their jobs.

I cannot deny that, after 25 years of working life, the shock was pretty strong.

The initial confusion has given way to the desire to take better care of my loved ones, my house and I do not deny, even to myself.

And so, little by little, I regained the pleasure of being able to do things more calmly.

At the same time I also realized that I had the desire to get closer to the world of volunteering and I knocked on the Porticina offering a few hours of collaboration to those who aid the ones in need has made its mission.

I could tell my feelings but I prefer to tell you: when you can, come to help those hands that sort and arrange clothes used so that other people can still wear them or come to give new life to the games that our children no longer use, and while you're doing it, try imagine the smile of other children, much less lucky, they will get them.

Spend some of our time to others is the best gift we can give to ourselves.

We are waiting to the Porticina!

Cristina
